A Message From Our CEO

Albany people make a difference every day. Their commitment, determination, and performance strengthen our company and make it a better place to work while also delivering value to our customers and shareholders. Underlying these qualities are our core values. Albany values are the pillars that support our vision and shape our culture. They define the way each of us work every day; our responses to challenges; and how we relate to one another, including our relationships with customers, partners, and shareholders.

For the 5,400 employees in the global Albany community, our core values are a unifying force no matter where we live and work.

Our Core Values come to life in our Business Ethics Policy (“BEP”). The BEP sets expectations for how we conduct the business of the company consistent with the highest ethical standards. The BEP is not a comprehensive rule book and does not address every situation that we may face. It provides the framework for ethical decision making and gives us the information we need to decide if, when, and how to seek help when making an ethics decision.

At Albany, we also have Ethics Absolutes – statements that are designed to articulate the major rules contained in the BEP clearly and succinctly.

When making ethics decisions, adherence to the BEP and the Ethics Absolutes is not optional. Since our founding in 1895, Albany has complied with all laws to which it is subject and adhered to the highest ethical standards doing business around the world. This is still our policy, and we uphold it rigorously – not only because we believe it is the right thing to do, but also because we believe that our continuous investment in ethics is a true competitive advantage in the complex and ever-evolving world in which we do business.

Please join me in being invested in ethics here at Albany. If you find you have questions about ethics and compliance, please email them to ethics@albint.com.

Best regards,

Gunnar Kleveland
President & Chief Executive Officer
Albany International Corp.

Background

Albany International Corp. is a member, at the Signatory level, of the United Nations Global Compact and has aligned its operations and strategies with the ten universally accepted principles in the areas of human rights, labour, environment and anti-corruption. Accordingly, these principles, along with Albany's Ethics Absolutes, Core Values and requirements contained in this BEP, form the foundation of ethical performance.

Purpose

This Business Ethics Policy applies to the directors, officers, and employees ("Personnel") of Albany International Corp. and its subsidiaries (the "Company" or "Albany"), as well as independent contractors, subcontractors, sales agents and distributors ("Third Party Representatives").

Managers are responsible for communicating this BEP to employees under their supervision. Employees responsible for managing relationships with Third Party Representatives are responsible for communicating this BEP to such parties and requiring them to agree to comply with its terms.

The Legal Department provides appropriate forms for employees to use in order to verify Third Party Representatives' compliance with this Business Ethics Policy. All contracts with Third Party Representatives must be approved by the Legal Department in writing, before the contract is signed.

Expectations

The following summarizes some of the key expectations for complying with the BEP, our core value of Integrity and Albany's Ethics Absolutes.

They include expectations that apply to all of our employees and additional expectations for our leaders.

Expectations For Our Leaders

- Foster a SPEAK UP environment based on trust and free from fear of retaliation.
- Help your employees understand their compliance responsibilities.
- Set an example by holding yourself and your employees accountable to Do the Right Thing. The Right Way.
- Evaluate your employees not only on their results, but also how they achieve them.

Expectations For Our Employees

- Promote and display our commitments and values through your daily words and actions.
- Engage and take ownership of compliance and ethics.
- Know and proactively comply with the BEP and Company policies.
- Take responsibility for protecting and strengthening Albany's culture and reputation.

- When you SPEAK UP, a good place to start is generally your supervisor or the Human Resources or Legal Departments. You can also contact any member listed below in the Whistleblower Section or the EthicsPoint Website.
- When you SPEAK UP, Albany will LISTEN UP and FOLLOW UP.
- Albany strictly prohibits any form of retaliation when someone SPEAKS UP in good faith.

Guidance

Use this series of questions to help you determine how to Do the Right Thing. The Right Way.

1. Is it legal?
2. Is it in compliance with our BEP, policies and procedures?
3. Is it in compliance with Albany's Ethics Absolutes?
4. Does it reflect our Core Values?
5. Would your team members, your supervisor and the Company approve?
6. Would you be proud if your action was on the front page of the local newspaper?

If you can answer "yes" to all of these questions without any doubts, then confidently proceed. If you answer "no" to any of these questions or are not positive about the answer, then SPEAK UP and seek guidance.

The business of the Company should, at all times, be conducted ethically, fairly, honestly, and with integrity. All applicable laws, rules, and regulations should be complied with. Company funds and assets should not be used for any unlawful purpose. All assets of the Company should be protected, employed efficiently, and used only for legitimate business purposes.

2. Accounting and Financial Reporting

The Company's Accounting Manual should be fully complied with at all times. All transactions, revenues, expenses, assets, and liabilities should be recorded accurately and in reasonable detail in the appropriate books, records, and accounts. The books, records, and accounts of the Company should be maintained in a manner that will facilitate the timely preparation of required public disclosure documents that are accurate and complete, including financial statements that conform to generally accepted accounting principles and other requirements. Company personnel should cooperate fully with the internal and independent auditors.

3. Improper Pursuit of Personal Interest

Company personnel should not be diverted or influenced by personal interests in carrying out activities on behalf of the Company and should avoid circumstances that raise the possibility, or create the appearance, that personal interest may influence business decisions involving the interests of the Company. Such circumstances may arise whenever a Company employee, or a person or entity to which the employee is closely related or in which the employee has a personal interest, receives a more-than-insubstantial benefit of any kind from a competitor, customer, supplier, or other person or entity with which the Company has a substantial business or financial interest. In cases of doubt, advice should be sought. (See "Advice with respect to the Business Ethics Policy," below.)

The following specific provisions must be followed, but are not intended to limit the scope of the foregoing policy:

3.1 Company personnel should not accept or solicit from any competitor, customer, supplier, or other person or entity with which the Company has a substantial business or financial relationship:

- a. Compensation of any kind, except as specifically approved in advance by the Audit Committee;
- b. Any cash payment, or a bribe or "kickback" of any kind.
- c. Any gift(s) or favor(s) from such a person or entity, except promotional items of nominal value, such as baseball caps or pads of paper; or
- d. Any entertainment that might be viewed as lavish or excessive under local practice and customs.

3.2 Company personnel should never (a) serve as employees, agents, directors, or officers of, (b) provide consulting services to, or (c) engage in any substantial business or financial transaction with a competitor of the Company.

Company personnel should not, without the express prior approval of the Audit Committee:

- a. serve as an employee or agent of, or
- b. serve as a director or officer of, or consultant to, or
- c. engage in any substantial business or financial transaction, other than a transaction in the normal course of business of the other party on terms no more favorable than are offered to others generally, with:

a person or entity other than the Company that he or she knows (a) is, at the time, or is likely to become, a substantial supplier to or substantial customer of the Company or (b) has at the time, or is likely to enter into, a substantial business or financial relationship with the Company.

3.3 Company personnel should not acquire, directly or indirectly, an investment or interest of any kind in an entity or person that he or she knows (a) is, at the time of the acquisition, or is likely to become, a competitor of the Company or a substantial supplier to or substantial customer of the Company or (b) at the time of the acquisition has, or is likely to enter into, a substantial business or financial relationship with the Company, except;

- a. an investment in a public mutual fund or similar public investment vehicle, provided such fund or other vehicle does not have an investment in any of such competitors, suppliers or other entities or persons that constitutes more than 5% of its total investments;
- b. an investment in publicly traded securities of a corporation that has outstanding, at the time of the acquisition of such investment or other interest, at least US$500 million in current market value of publicly traded securities, provided that immediately after such acquisition, the aggregate market value of all securities of such corporation held by the director, officer, or employee and members of his or her immediate family does not exceed 5% of the net worth of such director, officer, or employee, and further provided that such director, officer, or employee is not, at the time of the acquisition of such investment, in possession of any material information relating to such corporation that has not been publicly disclosed and that was obtained in the course of his or her affiliation with the Company; and
- c. a checking or savings account, certificate of deposit, or similar arrangement with a financial institution that has, or is likely to enter into, a substantial financial relationship with the Company if such arrangement is of a kind that, and on no more favorable terms than, is offered to customers of such institution generally.

A director, officer, or employee who becomes aware at any time that he or she holds an investment or interest that was not acquired in violation of this policy (including an investment or interest acquired before a prohibition under this policy became effective) but that could not currently be acquired in compliance herewith is not required to divest such an investment or interest but shall promptly notify the Chairman of the Audit Committee, in writing, of such investment or interest. Unless specifically authorized in writing by the Audit Committee, no such director, officer, or employee should represent the Company in any dealing with the entity or person in which such investment or interest is held.

3.4 The policies expressed in the preceding subsections 3.1, 3.2, and 3.3 are intended to apply as well to members of the immediate family of Company personnel, and Company personnel should use their best efforts to assure that members of their immediate family do not violate such policies. However, it is recognized that Company personnel may nevertheless not be able to prevent members of their immediate family from engaging in conduct that is contrary to such policies. Accordingly, Company personnel should notify the Chairman of the Audit Committee promptly after they become aware that any circumstance prohibited by the policies expressed in the preceding subsections 1, 2, and 3 exist or may be about to occur. Such Company personnel shall comply with such action or restrictions as the Audit Committee may determine to be necessary to protect the interests of the Company and shall promptly notify the Chairman of the Audit Committee of any change in the circumstances previously reported to the Chairman. The action taken, or restrictions imposed by the Audit Committee may, if the potential conflict of interest is substantial, include a change of function and/or restriction of responsibilities, or termination of employment.

Company personnel will not be compensated or reimbursed in any way for such personal activity or contributions.

16. Human Rights and Respect for Employees

The Company recognizes that many independent organizations and commissions have proposed core international human rights instruments, such as the United Nations Global Compact, and the Universal Declaration of Human Rights. These, and other similar instruments, generally put forth the principle that businesses are required to respect and support human rights. The Company supports global Human Rights and adheres strictly to the following:

Even if an employee is posting content on their personal social media accounts and is not representing the Company overtly, public posts may be read by anyone online, who then may complain about the employee's content and note that they work for Albany. From there, the conflict may grow and spread to impact Albany's reputation. Please refer to the Company's Policy No. 20.2, "Social Media Policy."

21. Communication on Behalf of the Company

The way we communicate with the public is very important and we must be honest, accurate and consistent. APPENDIX 1

European Addendum to the Whistleblowing Procedure

This addendum supplements the Business Ethics Policy with respect to the violation reporting provisions set forth in Section 25, "Reporting Violations and the Whistleblowing Procedure," for directors, officers and employees in the European Union ("European Personnel") only. In case of a conflict between the BEP and this addendum, this addendum will prevail, subject to applicable law.

Scope and Purpose of the Whistleblowing Procedure

European Personnel may use the Whistleblowing Procedure only to report:

- a. Possible violations of or complaints or concerns about matters relating to Section 2, "Accounting and Financial Reporting" section of the Business Ethics Policy, as well as any other possible violation of or complaints or concerns about matters relating to accounting, internal accounting controls, auditing and bribery;
- b. Any other matters if a vital interest of the Company or when the physical or moral integrity of its Personnel is at risk, including without limitation possible violations of laws or regulations relating to corruption, money laundering, terrorism, environmental, and/or health matters.

Optional Use of the Whistleblowing Procedure

The use of the Whistleblowing Procedure by European Personnel is optional.

Confidentiality and Anonymous Reporting

European Personnel are, in principle, encouraged to report violations on a name basis. The identity of the person making a report under the Whistleblowing Procedure will remain confidential and will not be disclosed to third parties, in particular to the reported person or the reporting parties' supervisors. The person making the report should, however, be aware that his or her identity may need to be disclosed to the persons in charge of investigating the reported violation or involved in any subsequent judicial proceedings. The making of a report will carry no risk of retribution if the report is made in good faith.

European Personnel may, however, prefer, considering the circumstances, to report a violation on an anonymous basis. Such reports will be processed through the Whistleblowing Procedure as an exception to the principle that European Personnel are encouraged to report violations on a named basis.

Retention of Data

Data concerning European Personnel obtained through reporting made outside the scope and purpose of the Whistleblowing Procedure will be deleted without delay.

Personal data processed under the Whistleblowing Procedure will be deleted within two months of completion of the investigation of the facts alleged in the report. In the event that legal proceedings or disciplinary measures are initiated against the reported person or the person making the report in the case of false or abusive reporting, such period will be extended until the conclusion of these proceedings and the period allowed for any appeal.

Notification

Following the preliminary investigation of the report, European Personnel concerned by the report and/or the investigation will be notified as soon as practicably possible. When, however, protective measures are required, including without limitation to preserve evidence by preventing its destruction or alteration by the reported person, notification to the reported person may be deferred until after such protective measures are implemented.

The reported European Personnel will be informed about (i) the name of the person in charge of investigating the report; (ii) the names of the persons, departments or services within the Company which may receive a copy of the report or information about the investigation; (iii) the facts he or she is accused of; (iv) the reported European Personnel's rights of access to, and of rectification of personal data and how to exercise such rights; and (v) the transfer of his or her personal data out of the EU. The reported person has the right to object to the processing of the personal data for compelling legitimate reasons.

Rights of Access and Rectification

Subject to the foregoing, reported European Personnel can access their registered data in order to check its accuracy and rectify it if they are inaccurate, incomplete or outdated. The exercise of these rights may, however, be restricted in order to ensure the protection of the rights and freedoms of others involved in the Whistleblowing Procedure. The reported person cannot obtain information about the identity of the party making the report, except where the latter knowingly reported false allegations of misconduct.

Reporting Methods

European Personnel may report violations to the following persons:

- | | | |
